DATE OF PUBLICATION: December 16th, 2021
SUBMISSION DEADLINE: February 28th, 2022
IBCH PAS: <https://portal.ichb.pl/en>

KEY WORDS: bioimaging, mass spectrometry, biomedicine

The Institute of Bioorganic Chemistry, PAS, in Poznan is an interdisciplinary research center, unique across Europe and worldwide, orchestrating the areas of chemistry, biology and informatics. It encompasses modern laboratory space with very well equipped specialized laboratories, supporting the conducted studies. Research at IBCH PAS is primarily focused around synthesis and studies of the structure and function of nucleic acids and proteins, as well as their components. The Institute is also open to other interdisciplinary fields of study, combining chemistry, biology and informatics in various configurations.

IBCH PAS is currently planning to establish a new department, operating within the field of molecular bioimaging by mass spectrometry

The offer is addressed to ambitious scientists who would like to carry out their independent scientific studies at IBCH PAS in a long-term perspective. The candidate should formulate his/her own, interesting topic of scientific activity, falling within the area of molecular bioimaging with the use of mass spectrometry. It is required that research is carried out at a high level of science (on an international scale). The results shall be published in renowned, international journals. It is also expected that the newly appointed Head of the Department will successfully apply for grants, enabling implementation of research projects, and actively take part in initiatives for the local and international scientific community.

For scientific departments, IBCH PAS ensures laboratory space and general equipment, and support of a number of facilities in various areas of research (see <https://portal.ibch.poznan.pl/specialized-laboratories/>).

I. Requirements for the Candidates:

1. At least a PhD degree in chemistry, biology, or related sciences.
2. Excellent track record in chemistry, biology, or related sciences, documented by scientific publications.
3. Experience in acquiring funds for research.
4. Excellent command of spoken and written English.
5. Experience in management of research groups, as well as completion of long-term research internships shall be considered as additional assets.

II. Required documents:

1. Letter of application addressed to the Director of IBCH PAS.
